Store inventory management system has inventory control unit executable on computer system for adjusting future food -related orders according to current food -related inventory, ordered food -related inventory and food -related item selections

Inventor: BROWN M W ...

... LAWRENCE K R ...

... PAOLINI M A

Abstract (Basic):

... The system has an inventory control unit executable on a computer system for adjusting future food -related orders for a store according to current food -related inventory, ordered food -related inventory, and selections of food -related items that are absent from several homes.

... The computer system has access to a database of current food -related inventory for a store , and to a database of food -related orders for the store . A communication interface is provided between the computer system and a universally accessible database in which selections of food -related items that are absent from several homes are accessible at the computer system according...

...For electronically managing inventory, such as food related inventory, at a store or food retailer...

...Provides an improved storage monitoring system for managing inventory for a food retailer according to accessing absent inventory from multiples. Incorporates features that provide for telephony, enhanced telephony, messaging, and information services. Performs computing tasks such as manipulating data in storage that is accessible to the computer system...

...The figure shows the block diagram of the electronic storage management system...

REFRIGERATOR WITH RF-ID TAG READER AND DATABASE, AND REFRIGERATOR STOCK CONFIRMATION SYSTEM USING PORTABLE INFORMATION TERMINAL

INTL CLASS: G06F-017/60 ; F25D-023/00; G06F-013/00

ABSTRACT

... food information and a system which confirms the stock in the refrigerator by using a portable information terminal.

SOLUTION: This refrigerator 1 is characterized by that a refrigerator which stores foods together with RF-ID tags having recorded food information has RF-ID tag readers both inside and outside and is equipped with...

... by the RF-ID readers. In this refrigerator stock confirmation system, the refrigerator 1 which stores the foods together with the added RF-ID tags having recorded food information is included and food information necessary for shopping is obtained by accessing the...

... foods in the refrigerator by a user from an outside visiting place by using a portable terminal 2.

... circles" also threw the privacy issue squarely into the spotlight. The company's program uses personal data about customers to compile online lists of books and music that people they live near...before issuing a discount, loyalty or rewards card. The law also makes it illegal for food stores to share or sell names, addresses and telephone numbers of customers. However, the law still allows supermarkets to track customer purchases and analyze the information for broad demographic trends.

Givens notes that the measure...

...allow consumers to participate in buyers club programs even if they refused to provide any personal data.

The privacy issue has already struck a chord with some California supermarket shoppers. Privacy concerns...

...of the first group, you should care. You should be concerned about where all your personal information ends up.

The best way to control how much of your information gets around...

...Some people I've spoken with have simply completed the club card application with inaccurate personal information so they can get low prices without being tracked. Personally, though, I don't condone...

...for the toy store to match the phone number with a whole bunch of other personal information ? If you find cashiers at every store in the mall asking for personal information to enter into their computer databanks, I suggest that you respectfully decline.

When Intel announced...

...Pentium III
processors, the company found out exactly what computer users think about having their personal information compromised.
Unfortunately, as computers become more popular, it's going to be harder and harder...
